

Raccoon

Raccoons are nocturnal animals that live in much of the world.

Raccoons make their dens in trees or above the ground.

Raccoon's front paws have 5 fingers, similar to a human hand.

Raccoons often
douse their food
before eating.

All baby raccoons are called kits.

The mask of a raccoon is often interrupted by a brown-black streak that extends from forehead to nose.

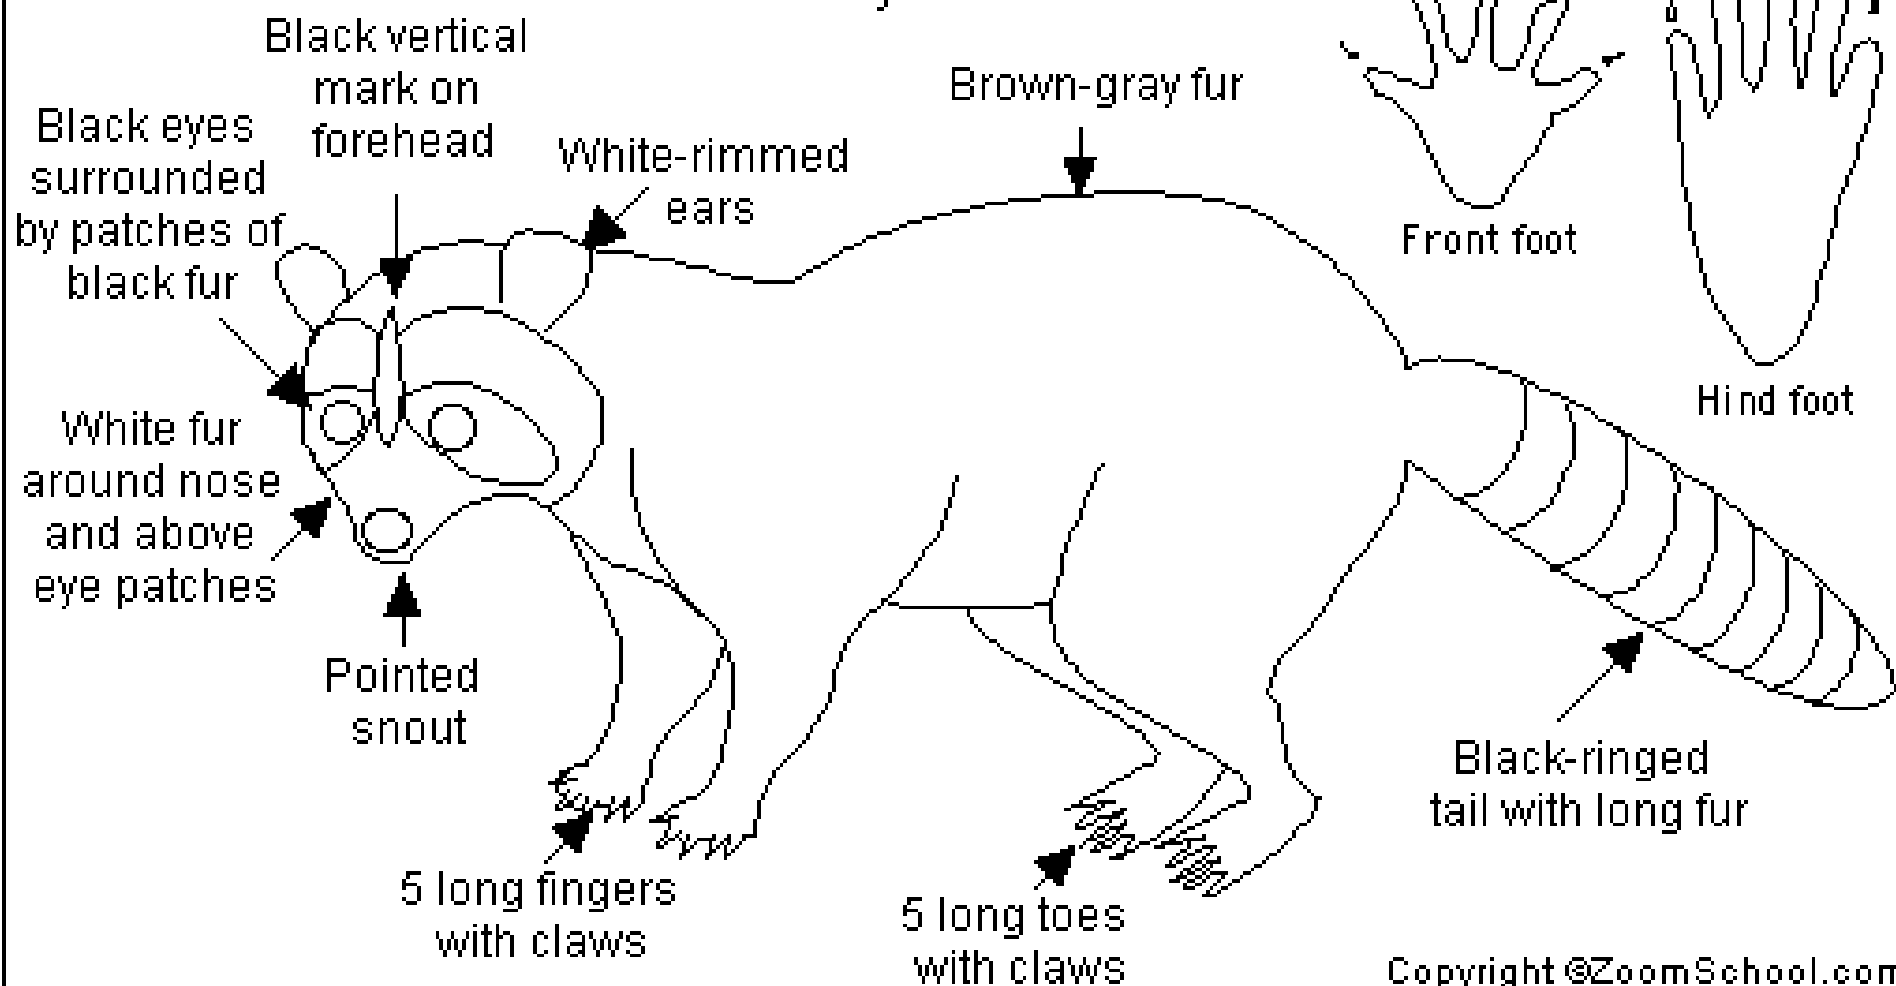

Raccoons are the mammal.

Raccoons have a body length of about 2 feet with bushy tail with black bars on the segmental length of approximately 10 inches.
